“Choosing to work with HGF was easy. The firm have an excellent reputation and an unrivalled ability to retain staff, making them a very attractive career move for our candidates. Their group-wide core values form the bedrock of the organisation and are clearly demonstrated through every layer of the firm. It’s great to see a firm who truly value both their fee earning and support staff. Their ever-evolving benefits package and constant drive to improve the employee experience are great examples of how much their people matter to them. My former colleagues and industry contacts have always spoken highly of the firm – and it’s clear to see why. We’re extremely glad to be partnered with them.

Our candidate feedback is always outstanding. They enjoy working in a forward-thinking and supportive environment that encourages employees to develop their skills, interests and confidence. Global demand for registered IP rights continues to grow – the World Intellectual Property Office figures for 2018 show patent filings around the world exceeding 3.3 million, representing a 5.2% growth on 2017 figures. Trade mark filing activity totalled 14.3 million, up 15.5% on 2017. Industrial design filing activity amounted to 1.3 million. Applications for utility models grew by 21.8% to reach 2.1 million applications, while plant varieties filings reached 20,210 in 2018.

Even with uncertainty over Brexit and the proposed Unitary Patent and the Pan European Unified Patent Court, Europe remains a hub for innovation. Switzerland, the Netherlands and the UK all rank in the top 5 in the Global Innovation Index, which ranks the innovation performance of nearly 130 economies around the world.

The shift towards Asian markets is also noticeable for the registration of IP rights. For the first time, Asia accounted for two-thirds of patent, trade mark and industrial design filing activity.

HGF’s Asia team comment
“We have been noticing the growth in Asia for some time, and have seen a dramatic rise in Asian innovators wanting to secure rights in Europe. Asia has also become a key market for many of our European and US clients, and we have built strong alliances with IP firms in Asia to support our clients’ interests in the region.”

Global demand for IP continues to grow

Global economic growth appears to be losing momentum relative to last year. Productivity growth is at a record low. Trade battles are brewing. Economic uncertainty is high. Despite this gloomy perspective, innovation is blossoming around the world. In developed and developing economies alike, formal innovation – as measured by research and development (R&D) and patents – and less formal modes of innovation are thriving.

Innovation in the retail market

Innovation in the retail market is being seen both online and in-store, with these markets responding to consumer-driven trends such as ecommerce, personalisation and social influencers. As retail models develop and change, the role of intellectual property will remain central to many commercial strategies. HGF’s enterprises such as the annual Retail Conference and the Retail Scanner Newsletter help us to consider the IP dimension of current trends and issues in this fast moving sector.

“A willingness to embrace technological change in retail is becoming a key factor in achieving success in a competitive market. Opportunities for innovation are present in every facet of the retail experience, including new technologies to improve fulfilment and deliver enhanced value as well as AI to maximise consumer choice and the shopping experience. HGF’s retail team keeps its clients right up to date through its IP in Retail conferences, its Retail Scanner publication and direct contact on new developments.”

Medical Innovation

Medical innovation is expected to cultivate new healthcare markets at a rapid pace. The European Patent Office (EPO) granted 20% more patents in 2018 than 2017, with applications in the field of Medical Technology taking the greatest share at around 8% of all applications filed at the EPO. HGF’s annual Healthcare Conference has noticed trends towards AI being used.

““There are definite trends emerging in the hi-tech space; 5G, IoT, AI. I’m excited to see the effect of these disparate technologies converging. We’ll see the convergence of 5G, with its superfast data rates and low latencies, and AI, with its superior decision making, resulting in significantly greater autonomy in non-human decisions across the full panoply of applications like medical devices, autonomous vehicles, financial markets, biotechnologies, chemistry and pharmacology, which will provide sector specific opportunities for multidisciplinary, agile, attorney teams in supporting clients in those spaces.””

Harry Hutchinson
Partner and Patent Attorney

Artificial Intelligence

AI is a hot topic – with innovations in this area being applied to the fields of Telecommunication, Transport, and Life and Medical Sciences. In terms of market trends, computer technology was the most frequently featured technology in published patent applications worldwide, with 229,269 published applications (2017). In respect of trade marks “goods class 9” which includes scientific, photographic, measuring instruments, recording equipment, computers and software, was represented in 11.5% of all reported non-resident trade mark filing activity by class.

We evolve by taking opportunities and adopting new business procedures, unencumbered by historical structures or out-of-date attitudes. As a firm, we have an entrepreneurial spirit, and encourage new thinking in our people.
Q. What is your assessment of HGF today?
A. This is an exciting time at HGF. We have a compelling platform that provides tailor-made solutions for our clients in Europe and around the world. This follows a decade of growth and evolution fulfilling the changing needs of our clients, and building our revenues, profits and geographical footprint. This has only been possible because of the commitment, talents and professionalism of our HGF colleagues. In our increasingly complex world we are creating and protecting valuable assets for our clients. The business that we’ve built over the last 10 years has set us up to become Europe’s leading IP advisor over the next 10 years.

Q. How has HGF performed this year?
A. 2018/19 was another year of high performance. HGF achieved record turnover, revenues and profits of £72.03m (£63.3m), £42.2m (£36.8m) and £18.1m (£16.96m) respectively. This success was based on the combination of creating value for clients and extending our European reach into new markets in Germany, Ireland and Switzerland, as well as increasing the breadth and depth of technical and professional experience in our attorney population.

Q. What have been the key highlights for the firm this year?
A. As part of the firm’s strategic plan, HGF announced a merger with Patronus IP in March, which has also laid the foundations for further expansion into Europe and will prove to be beneficial in strengthening our client base in Asia. The firm continued its expansion across other European markets with offices opening in Bern and Dublin. Further growth across our talent base saw well respected Partners, Leytham Wall join the team in The Hague and Leena Contarino join the team in Basel. The inaugural launch of the Financial Times patent ranking placed HGF at 3rd across Europe, which reinforced our position in the market and has taken us further towards our vision to be the leading IP firm in Europe.

Q. What have been the key challenges for the firm this year?
A. Whilst uncertainty continued around the Unitary Patent, the Unified Patents Court and Brexit, for HGF it has been business as usual. By listening to our clients, HGF’s excellence allowed us to adapt to changing needs. Our close personal relationships with clients drive us to develop solutions that strengthen our clients’ market share. This client focus is supported by our business model: we operate with a traditional ‘partnership’ ethos but use best practice within the confines of a corporate structure and company law. The group’s shareholders (“partners”) are widely consulted and have a vote on all significant decisions, especially those that impact client relationships.

Q. How do you see the year ahead?
A. We are heading into an uncertain market both politically and economically and we anticipate challenges that we have not had to face before, particularly in the context of Brexit. However the strategic plans we have put in place for growth in Europe and Asia, as well as a continued focus to respond to our clients’ needs for delivering value, will ensure our continued growth. Our ability to provide clients with multi-disciplinary teams across jurisdictions continues to gain traction in both the domestic and international markets. This compliments our commitment to increasing the number of sector specific groups, building on the success we have seen in our Healthcare, Retail, CRISPR and Energy groups, all of which have seen healthy growth in this financial year. We will launch a new Financial & Insurance group in Q3 of 2019/20.

Q. What investment in the HGF service have you made?
A. HGF continues to invest for the longer term, through enhancing the strength of our support functions, including business development and marketing.

We continue to deepen our understanding of the client experience, to improve our efficiency, client interaction and pricing. Further innovations within our records management systems are well advanced for roll-out in 2020 and continue to set us apart from our competitors. This includes allowing for automation of EPO Official Communications, outbound communications, integration of our cloud-based IT systems across all our European operations, adoption of the GCHQ Cyber Security Essentials Certification, and client focussed changes in our intellectual property portfolio management and client information system, OCIS. Such risk-focused system changes are complimented by a shift in our client relationships from attorney-to-attorney to HGF-to-client, thereby allowing much greater quality and price control in terms of portfolio management across multiple countries around the world.

In short, we expect the group’s business to continue to grow in 2019-20 as the latest office openings put down firm roots, as revenues from our more established offices increase, as we open new offices in new countries in Europe, and as we develop our strategy in Asia. Key to delivering our strategy is our focus on hiring the best talent and we continue to recruit, retain and develop the highest quality attorneys and support staff in all the countries in which we operate.

This is all focused on our vision of becoming Europe’s leading IP advisors.

Marie Mc Morrow

By way of example, a patent application for an innovative new AGA range door as seen below:
“What I find refreshing working with HGF is its open business approach. We have a proactive service manager in Marie McMorrow, and we have found the patent and trademark teams consistently thorough, commercial and supportive to our dynamic business.

HGF has worked with us to rationalise our extensive global patent, designs and brand portfolio, thereby taking out unnecessary business cost. Working alongside us, they have then added further value by their strategic approach to ensure our new IP protection aligns to our new product developments, brands and international business goals.”

Case Study

Taking Nature’s lead in Antimicrobials

HGF is responsible for the entire IP portfolio and have carried out a full review of the IP estate and taken time to understand NovaBiotics’ various commercial goals.

About the Company
NovaBiotics Ltd is a leading clinical-stage biotechnology company focused on the design and development of first-in-class anti-infectives for difficult-to-treat, medically unmet diseases. The Company’s advanced portfolio of antimicrobial therapeutic candidates targets large and important markets with significant unmet clinical needs, including Lynovex® (in oral and inhaled form), an orphan drug candidate for cystic fibrosis (CF), Novexatin®, a potential step change therapy for onychomycosis and Novamycin®, a novel antifungal peptide in development primarily for the treatment of invasive fungal diseases caused by mould & emerging, drug resistant yeasts.

Market
Bacterial and fungal infectious diseases are responsible for the deaths of 14 to 17 million individuals each year. Antimicrobial Resistance (AMR) is a modern epidemic that further compounds the challenges and burdens of infectious disease on health care systems the world over. The limited therapeutic options to combat not only AMR, but even the most common microbial infections is a major health and socioeconomic global concern. Declining new antimicrobial drug approvals and an inadequate pipeline of anti-infective therapies meets at a crossroad with AMR thereby resulting in an anti-infectives crisis. Medical agencies around the world, including the US Centre for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) and the WHO, have voiced concerns regarding the dwindling pipeline of therapeutics available to treat drug-resistant infections.

Onychomycosis, a fungal nail infection, is common across the globe and due to the difficulty for any therapeutic agent to penetrate the nail structure, has not been well-treated to date. Novamycin has demonstrated surprising levels of nail penetration and treatment of the fungal infection.

Cystic fibrosis (CF) is the most common inherited life-limiting genetic condition in Caucasian populations and is a chronic debilitating disease that affects around 70,000 individuals worldwide. CF is caused by a mutation of which over 1,500 have been identified in a single gene; one that encodes a key protein (the CFTR) which is required for correct ion transport and fluid regulation across the body’s epithelial barriers, such as the linings of the respiratory and gastrointestinal tracts. CF respiratory infections have such an impact on lung function and long-term health outcomes for patients that successful treatment or eradication of these microbes is paramount to improving prognosis and quality of life. NovaBiotics approach to tackling CF is completely novel and represents a major breakthrough in CF treatments. Lynovex® is a unique molecule with antibiofilm, antibacterial and mucolytic activity. As such, NM001 (Lynovex®) represents a single therapy that is being developed to tackle multiple – and the major – respiratory symptoms in cystic fibrosis. Importantly, Lynovex® is a treatment that can be used by all patients, regardless of their genotype and specific CFTR mutation. Lynovex® is being developed in oral form for acute exacerbations in CF and also as an inhaled product for chronic, long term use.

IP Portfolio
The patent portfolio includes over 350 patents and patent applications in an extensive list of countries, all being derived from 11 patent families. The trade mark portfolio includes over 160 pending and registered trade marks in an extensive list of countries. These trade marks are registered in a variety of classes, including: Class 5; pharmaceutical and veterinary preparations, particularly anti-infective and anti-viral preparations; class 10; medical equipment, and: scientific research and development class 42.

“Thanks to HGF, we have achieved exactly what we set out to do with ongoing strategic review and ongoing management of our patent and trade mark estate.”

Deborah A O’Neil PhD FRSE
Chief Executive Officer – NovaBiotics Ltd
HGF have carried out a full review of the IP estate and taken time to understand the various commercial goals of the company.

Craig Thomson
Partner & Patent Attorney

The HGF relationship

HGF successfully won a competitive tender in 2018 to take over responsibility for the entire IP portfolio. Craig Thomson manages the client and has a monthly meeting in which prosecution strategies for the various pending cases are agreed. New and evolving commercial focuses are identified and the suitability of the standing IP strategy analysed, and changed where appropriate. Most of the patent prosecution work is handled by Lauris Kemp and Craig Thomson, whilst the HGF trade mark team are responsible for all trade mark prosecution matters. Mike Nelson and Marie-Louise Jardle also provide specialist advice on strategies for extending terms of exclusivity for sales of the products that are peculiar to pharmaceutical products. The formalities activities required for this extensive portfolio are directed by Rachel Waddington who helps the client to optimise administrative efficiencies.

The Work

HGF have carried out a full review of the IP estate and taken time to understand the various commercial goals of the company. From this analysis, an IP strategy was agreed and HGF constantly works on its evolution in line with changes in the client’s commercial goals. The strategy has been designed to not only bring the IP portfolio more into line with the business goals, but also involved a large number of efficiency strategies that has reduced the cost of running the portfolio. These strategies now govern the patent and trade mark prosecution strategies as we bring more pending rights to grant, decide in which countries to file, and what new developments are appropriate to protect in new filings. We also regularly discuss scientific developments with the team at NovaBiotics to help understand what work is coming out and that could be protectable, and also to advise on how to ensure that presentations or articles from the company do not adversely affect any future or current patent filings. The input from Mike and Marie-Louise was crucial to be able to understand the true value of some key portfolios, essentially by understanding how one could optimise the length of term of a monopoly of sales of key products. As potential collaborations and licensing opportunities have arisen, we have also provided support by way of preparation for due diligence, and support during the diligence process.

We are responsible for the registration and maintenance of numerous trade marks in the US and Canada, we handle all the requirements for maintaining registered rights in those territories, including the necessary statements of use and supporting evidence. We have provided strategic advice in relation to the protection of pharmaceutical drug names, particularly the challenges faced where products are still in the clinical trials stage, but the necessary trade mark use requirements need to be met.

NovaBiotics reached a key inflexion point in the company’s lifecycle with an extensive and maturing IP portfolio supporting novel anti-infective products that are now entering clinical trials and getting closer to market. The business needed to ensure that they were in the possession of an appropriate, commercially-focused IP management strategy and to work with a full service patent firm that could meet all of our needs to deliver this on a continued basis. NovaBiotics also needed a firm with more of a global reach and offices outside of the UK but ideally a local presence close to the company’s R&D base in Aberdeen. HGF were highly recommended as a firm to work with to achieve this and stood out as we spoke with a number of competitors as clearly being able to meet all our requirements. In the 12 months since we began our relationship with HGF, we have achieved exactly what we set out to do with ongoing strategic review and ongoing management of our patent and trade mark estate. With Craig Thomson coordinating input from the wider HGF team, we have benefited from service offerings other firms we have worked with previously have not been able to provide, including ex-pharma colleagues who have helped us present our patent estate in an appropriate way for licensees, investors, strategic partners, acquirers etc. This has added significant value to the business, hence us continuing to work with Craig and the wider HGF team. The client portal, online renewals tools and support from the admin teams are also invaluable.

Our relationship with HGF
Thought Leadership

Brand protection beyond Brexit

Since the UK voted to leave the EU in 2016’s referendum, HGF has worked to ensure that Brexit will just mean ‘business as usual’ for its clients.
“We know that intellectual property rights are among the most valuable assets that any business or organisation has, and yet in our poll 44% of respondents say brand protection is not regularly discussed at Board level.

Amidst a volatile, unpredictable political process and in an increasingly uncertain age, Brexit means business as usual for HGF and our clients, as our European network and capability enable us to support organisations with an unrivalled local knowledge of IP rights throughout multiple jurisdictions.”

However, ongoing negotiations and unresolved political debate on the future status of the UK in its relationship with the EU has created an environment of uncertainty for business.

This year we carried out a survey to better understand how prepared some of Europe’s biggest companies are for life after Brexit, in terms of protecting their valuable IP rights and the brand equity this adds to their business.

We consulted over 120 companies, many of them world-leaders in their markets and industry sectors, with a specific focus on the UK, Germany, France, The Netherlands, Spain and Switzerland.

Together they have annual revenues of hundreds of billions of pounds, are major employers, product innovators and economic drivers and exporters.

By taking the temperature of their concerns, priorities, planning and preparations, areas of doubt and perceived opportunities, weaknesses and threats, we can make sure we continue to enable our clients to have the edge, delivering comprehensive services that meet their needs.

Key takeaways:

• Almost half of respondents (46%) say they will change their brand protection strategy after the UK leaves the EU

• A third (33%) of European businesses say Brexit will make brand protection harder for their business

• A third of companies (31%) still do not know how they will register trade marks after Brexit

• 61% of respondents believe it is now important to have IP advisors based in multiple European jurisdictions with 83% saying local knowledge is the key benefit

• A significant 88% of respondents either didn’t use Registered Design Protection as part of their IP protection strategy at all or only a little

• More than 40% said that brand protection strategy was not regularly discussed at Board level
Brexit, Business and Brand Protection

Our Findings

The value of brand, and therefore its protection, has never been greater than it is today. According to Interbrand’s Best Global Brands 2019 Rankings the cumulative value of the world’s top 100 brands has reached $2.1 trillion. It’s therefore no surprise why concerns over the rigour and implications for brand protection post-Brexit is one of the primary themes of our findings.

Almost half (46%) of businesses expect to change their brand protection after Brexit. But, after more than three years of political debate, negotiations, government advertising and awareness campaigns, a third (31%) still do not know how they will register trade marks after Brexit even though the same proportion (33%) think Brexit would make brand protection harder.

The loss of EU geographic location protection was also a concern. Exiting the world’s largest trading bloc prompted 54% of respondents to express concerns about the impact of the $460 billion global counterfeit industry on their businesses, given the EU’s great emphasis on muscular protection and enforcement of IP rights in third countries.

Nearly two thirds (61%) of businesses now believe it important that their IP advisor has bases in multiple jurisdictions across Europe, with 83% citing local knowledge and expertise as a key benefit for this. Businesses are concerned that brand licensing would be more complex in other EU territories after Brexit, with additional legal jurisdictions to negotiate, more trade marks to file and possible issues with cross border knowledge and policing around brand protection.

Critically, as businesses navigate the potential changes presented by Brexit, having a firm that is able to deliver a single service across trade marks, IP and brand protection is invaluable. Through our established network of 22 offices across the UK, Germany, Ireland, The Netherlands, Austria and Switzerland, we provide a high level of on the ground expertise and knowledge on trade mark searches, registration and infringement procedures. HGF seamlessly manages both EU and UK trade mark processes together, reducing cost and complexity for our clients.

“Whilst partly explained by the fact that some companies (for example, those in the service sector) will have no need for designs, this result questions whether businesses are missing out on highly valuable and cost-effective IP protection. Registered designs have proven their worth across many industries, not just the fashion and consumer goods sectors that are seen by many as the traditional domain of design registration. For example, pharmaceutical and medical device companies have successfully used registered design to limit the entry of generic products.

Fables of opportunities lost often best highlight the value of designs. The difficulties faced in recent high profile cases, where poorly registered designs have either been lost or found unenforceable show the value of getting designs right and the potential value of designs as the unsung hero of IP.

In Europe, the process for securing designs is quick and inexpensive, with designs often registered in just a few days.”
Chairman’s Statement

Strong growth prospects

“It has been another record year for the firm and that is always exciting. As a service industry it is our people that are at the heart of making that success happen.”

Jason Lumber
Chairman & Partner
Q. What are the highlights of the year for you?
A. It has been another record year for the firm, which is testament to the focus of our daily delivery for our clients. As a service industry it’s our people that are at the heart of making that success happen. But we cannot be complacent, in terms of talent we hire, how we nurture the next generation and how we look after our colleagues. The initiatives that we have pioneered in the firm this year have been particularly significant as they have enhanced our culture which, in turn, has led to a higher level of productivity. Initiatives have included:

- The launch of our mental health project with training for all staff across the firm in spotting and managing stress levels;
- Creating mental health first aiders across the firm;
- Continuing to actively support the work of IP inclusive. As one of the founding firms we have been particularly active in attending and hosting events and participating in initiatives such as the LGBTQ week and mental health awareness weeks;
- Implementing a formal summer intern programme led by a partner who himself came to the firm as an intern some 14 years ago; and
- Creating and launching the firm’s comprehensive CSR programme including progressive policies covering environment & sustainability, pro bono and voluntary work and charitable donations.

Q. What are your priorities for the next 12 months?
A. As the firm continues to grow we are continually facing new challenges around engaging with our stakeholders. In 2018/19 we recruited 44 fee earners and a further 58 staff in support roles across the firm. We aim to ensure that we are recruiting a team who will have the right skills to enable the firm to continue to meet its ambitious growth plans across Europe and into Asia. Our merger with Patronus IP in March, whichboosted our European footprint, has successfully tested our internal operations and has created innovation across our processes to integrate their systems into the HGF OCIS portfolio management system.

I am proud to see the entrepreneurial spirit that was here at the start of the business in 1995 is still flourishing within the firm and the investments that we have made in our IT team to continue to build our portfolio management system. This initiative has been described by clients as ‘best in class’ within the IP industry.

Q. Where do you see the biggest challenges for the firm in the next 12 months?
A. Ensuring that we continue to provide our clients with the experience that they expect from one of the leading IP firms in Europe. With our growth we have had to quickly adapt to ensure that we are integrating our staff across the business both in terms of our culture but also our systems. Our clients expect a consistent service across the business. We have created a culture which rewards staff who embody our values of progression, teamwork and excellence.

Brexit is obviously a factor for every business in Europe at the current time, and there are additional benefits for our business because of our European footprint. We have undertaken scenario planning across several alternatives, and I am confident that, as far as we can, we have prepared ourselves and our clients. We have played our part in lobbying the government working with CITMA and have several attorneys in special interest groups on both CIPA and CITMA committees. Moreover, as a pan-European firm we have established both systems and personnel to ensure the firm is able to service the needs of clients before the EUIPO and EPO.

Future
We were delighted when Alastair da Costa joined the firm as a consultant in January 2019. The strategic thought Alastair has brought to the Management Board and firm has been of great value in challenging us in the pursuit of our vision to be the leading IP firm in Europe. We were delighted that he made the decision to join the Partnership from August 1, 2019.

We have a strong brand which we have been developing over the last 14 years and I am looking forward to sharing a new website and brand refresh over the next 12 months which will support our aspirations across Europe.

Changes in the board

HGF & Sustainability

HGF is committed to a sustainable future

We are doing this through our own efforts, our clients and our R&D programmes.

HGF’s values define what we stand for and the behaviours we expect of ourselves. Like many companies, we also want to build a sustainable business that addresses global concerns and trends.

Our focus is on our people, our environment and the communities in which we operate.

People
We have 22 offices in Europe with a diverse team of 382 people who speak over 20 languages. We aim to have a diverse and inclusive workforce, with policies and initiatives that support this aim. Examples include our reward structures, our recruitment process and active membership of IP Inclusive.

Diversity is a priority area. We focus on promoting inclusion and equality to improve our balance in gender, ethnicity, age, social background, disability, religion, and sexual orientation.

We foster an environment in which people prosper. We recognise the unique talents, skills and experience of the individuals within our teams. We hold ourselves accountable for supporting our clients’ interests as well as the interests of our people.

We have the most diverse partnership in our industry: UK, German, Dutch and US patent and trade mark attorneys, UK and Irish solicitors, chartered accountants, IT and HR professionals and formalities officers. Many of our partners are the result of our internal training and development programs. We are working to improve our diversity by promoting our industry to and recruiting from schools and universities who have more balanced, more representative student populations, especially in STEM subjects.

Deborah Long
Project and Management Accountant

1. I chose to work at HGF because I had seen its growth in the industry and I wanted to be a part of it. I have been with HGF for quite a while now and it’s a great place to work. I had lots of support in studying for my professional qualifications and since qualifying I have been given fantastic mentoring and opportunities to continue my development and experience, especially overseas.

2. HGF adopts a fresh approach to challenges and has confidence in its ability to adapt, this ensures my role is always fulfilling. I am working on projects I never believed I could have. I am very happy here at HGF and feel my input is valued and rewarded by a business that genuinely cares about its staff.

Dave Louis
International Head Trade Mark Formalities

1. I was actively looking for new challenge with a people focused firm that fits with my personal ethos of wanting to work in an open and innovative culture.

I met with a couple of firms, and while they had great credentials and excellent offerings, they didn’t quite ‘tick’ all of my personal, cultural and ethical boxes. I met with HGF and from the initial interviews it was clear that they not only ticked every box but also ticked several boxes I hadn’t even considered. The firm’s ethos of putting people first and having an open, inclusive culture at all levels, as well a desire to be a progressive market leader, was what attracted me most.

All in all it seemed a little too good to be true. However, I was fortunate to have worked with a number of HGF staff previously, who confirmed that this was indeed the day to day culture of the firm.

2. My reasons for joining the firm are the reasons I still enjoy coming to work each day. Having seen how easy it is for a company’s ‘core’ values to be sidestepped when needed, and the negative impact this has on the personality/soul of a firm, what impresses me most about HGF is that even when there are challenges, the firm’s focus on putting people first doesn’t waiver.

I see the knock on effect this has every day, at all levels within the firm, in terms of individual’s commitment to, and personal accountability for, HGF’s clients, as well as the significant impact it has on creating a positive working environment.

Leythem Wall
Partner and Patent Attorney

1. What attracted me to HGF was its clear ambition, particularly in Europe. It is one of the very few Intellectual Property firms, if not the only, with practising offices in three of the major centres of European IP law – London, Munich and The Hague. With an increasing number of European patent examinations and in particular oppositions being handled by The Netherlands branch of The European Patent Office, as well as some of the world’s largest companies or their European arms being based in the Benelux, HGF represented a unique opportunity at a truly European firm.

2. The quantity and quality of attorneys at HGF, as well as an industry leading presence in Europe has made continuing the relationship a simple choice. Attorneys, as well as their clients, have access to all the resources of one of Europe’s largest full service IP firms.

We asked our staff...

1. Why did you choose to work with HGF?

2. What makes you continue your relationship with HGF?
Community
Being a responsible corporate citizen

As a founding and active member of IP Inclusive, for all those working in IP, our aim is to promote social mobility, diversity, education, mentoring support, and mental awareness. We also undertake pro bono work and encourage volunteer days to support local business and charities and in 2020 we aim to launch phase 1 of a CSR programme that will promote shareholder and employee engagement in the community.

Environment
Reducing our impact

We recognise that we need to rise to the environmental challenges and opportunities that are facing our world. Our aim in 2020 is to identify and align to the UN's Sustainable Development Goals and ways to continue to reduce, as well as offset, our carbon footprint.

IP Inclusive
Promoting and improving equality, diversity and inclusion

IP Inclusive is a network whose aim is to improve equality, diversity and inclusion in the IP professions. HGF was one of the early signatories to the IP Inclusive Charter, which now includes over 140 organisations. As a charter signatory, we commit to improving equality, diversity and inclusion by:

1. Having in place a named individual within our organisation as Equality, Diversity and Inclusion Officer (Vanessa Stainthorpe, Partner).
2. Having in place a written Equality, Diversity and Inclusion Policy for our organisation and making everybody in the organisation aware of it.
3. Promoting openness and transparency so as to demonstrate merit-based equal opportunities in our recruitment and career progression processes.
4. Acknowledging the effects of unconscious bias and introducing measures to tackle it.
5. Monitoring and reporting internally on our progress using measures and at intervals that are appropriate to our size and nature.
6. Sharing our experience within the IP Inclusive community to help build an effective network for equality, diversity and inclusion across the IP sector.

We have organised and participated in a wide-range of events over the last year, including:

- Attending the IP Inclusive AGM to help shape the future plans for the initiative
- Promoting and participating in the IP Inclusive Mental Wellbeing Survey and Diversity Benchmarking Survey
- Hosting and participating in multi-site webinars on a range of topics including mental wellbeing, disability and social mobility
- Hosting a Women in IP networking event
- Sponsorship of the IP Inclusive website development and IP Inclusive merchandise for distribution
- Promotion of the Careers in Ideas initiative outreach campaign aimed at raising awareness of IP-related careers
- Vanessa Stainthorpe was a panel speaker for a webinar during Mental Health Awareness Week, discussing her experiences of training as a Mental Health First Aider
- Dedicating a session at our annual CPD conference (open to all of our attorneys) to the topic of Unconscious Bias
- Founding the IP Inclusive North of England Network with a launch event in our Leeds office, hosting a panel discussion on flexible working
- IP Inclusive Week, where multiple offices hosted coffee mornings and lunches to explore the theme of “Allies, Advocates and Supporters”, with a factsheet on the topic sent to every person in the firm

“HGF have been hugely supportive of IP Inclusive, in particular over the creation of the new North of England network this year, and I really appreciate that. Vanessa Stainthorpe, Partner in the HGF Sheffield office has been a champion of our cause and has both organised and participated in our events. HGF have hosted a series of events including regional webinar viewings, and also the “flexible working” panel discussion on 8 October. HGF were one of the sponsors for the IP inclusive website upgrade which went live in early February 2019 and has made it so much easier for us to engage with both current and potential supporters. We are really grateful to the firms who helped make that happen.

I was also delighted that HGF’s various offices were so active during IP Inclusive Week this year (as they were in 2018), with topical discussions underpinned by diversity fact sheets - a great way to promote diversity and inclusivity throughout the firm. HGF really are leading by example on this front”.

Andrea Brewster OBE CPA EPA,
Lead Executive Officer – IP Inclusive
